

DAMAGE CASE IS APPROACHING END

Suit of James Leighton, a Minor, Against McCord, et al., May Go to The Jury Tonight.

MANY WITNESSES TESTIFY

Defendants Rest Case and Rebuttal Testimony is Introduced by The Plaintiff.

As the opening of the circuit court was delayed a short time today the damage case against the three Seymour police officers may not reach the jury until late tonight or tomorrow morning. James Leighton, a minor, has instituted suit for $1,000 alleging that he was wrongfully and falsely arrested. The case was resumed today after a continuance was granted last Friday.

The jurors, who live in this part of the county, Judge Swails, the attorneys and witnesses in the case were ready to go to Brownstown in the automobile "bus this morning, but the machine broke down on the way to Seymour and the passengers were compelled to wait until the arrival of the accommodation train on the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad.

The examination of witnesses was resumed as soon as court was called to order and about noon the defendant completed the introduction of testimony. The plaintiff's attorneys then called a number of witnesses in rebuttal. It was thought at three o'clock this afternoon that the evidence would be completed before five o'clock. The court may order a night session so that the attorneys can present their arguments and they may be delayed until Thursday morning. Considerable time will likely be consumed in summing up the evidence and citing the law.

The defendants say that they feel confident that a verdict will be returned in their favor.

With only a few days of the term remaining, Judge Swails is expediting court business as rapidly as possible this week and many cases have been disposed of.

In the case of the State vs. Clarence Edwards on a charge of grand larceny, the defendant was discharged on motion of Deputy Prosecutor Wesner.

Curtis Whitley was found guilty on a charge of burglary and was sentenced to from one to eight years in the Jeffersonville reformatory, fined $5 and disenfranchised for five years.

Rosa Brooks was granted a divorce from Almander Brooks, and was given the custody of their three children.

Herman Heckman was granted a divorce from Anna R. Heckman, on payment of costs in the case.

Addie Borinstein was granted a divorce from Nathan Borinstein, and given the custody of their child.

In the case of Laura K. Durst vs. Thos. E. Fisher, et al, to foreclose mortgage, finding was returned for the plaintiff and judgment in the amount of $1,344.10, including attorney's fees, allowed.

The jury in the case of the State vs. Charles Gerard failed to agree and was dismissed.

In the case of Max Graf Admr. vs. Charles W. Purvis, et al, for foreclosure, finding was for the plaintiff and total judgment in the sum of $1,657 awarded, and that of Wm. A. Smith vs. Idabell Humphrey was also decided in favor of plaintiff and the mortgage foreclosed.

Jesse O'Neal, the plaintiff in a divorce suit filed against his wife, Addie O'Neal, was in court as a defendant hearing, but was dismissed.

SEEKS $50,000 DAMAGE FOR ALLEGED BREACH OF PROMISE

Columbus Woman Says Wealthy Farmer Failed to Carry Out Contract of Marriage.

Alleging that she has suffered great humiliation and mental anguish because of the failure of William Meyer, a wealthy farmer living near Columbus, to carry out his part of a marriage contract, Mrs. Martha Amick, of Columbus, filed suit against him in the Bartholomew circuit court today for $50,000. The plaintiff is the widow of the late David Amick, who practiced law at Columbus for many years.

Among other allegations Mrs. Amick says Meyers agreed to marry her last fall and that he promised to take her on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, Philadelphia and many other places but it was afterwards agreed to postpone the wedding until October 24, which was also her birthday. She alleges that on the day set for the wedding she waited for Meyers to arrive but he failed to fulfill his part of the agreement. She states that she purchased $500 worth of new dresses especially for the honeymoon trip and that now they are of no use to her.

WOMAN IN INTOXICATED CONDITION TAKEN FROM CAR

Mrs. Hazel Flannigan, Enroute to Louisville, Causes Disturbance and Lands in Local Jail.

Mrs. Hazel Flannigan, who said her home was at Cicero, was taken from an interurban car Tuesday night and lodged in jail, a charge of intoxication having been preferred against her. It is alleged that she caused a disturbance on the traction car and the local officers were notified to meet the car and take charge of her.

The affidavit against the woman was drawn up under the statute that makes it unlawful for any person to drink intoxicating liquors or to appear in a train or traction car in an intoxicated condition. When arraigned she pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. The court, however, agreed to suspend the payment of the fine upon the promise of the defendant to leave the city at once. Mrs. Flannigan said she was on her way to Louisville where she hoped to secure a position as a musician in a moving picture theater. She carried a large roll of sheet music with her and said that she had been employed at several theaters in various parts of the state.

When the woman was taken in custody by the local police she said that her mother lived at Cicero. The officers talked over long distance telephone with her mother who refused to aid her, declaring that her daughter has already caused her great worry and anxiety. The woman left for Louisville as soon as she was released from jail.

UNIFORM METHOD OF SELLING BONDS

This is Purpose of Letter Sent to Officials of All Counties by State Examiner.

BANKERS FILE COMPLAINT

State Board of Accounts Says no One Has Been Injured by Irregularities of Past.

John Belding, county treasurer, and several other county officials have received a letter from Gilbert H. Hendren, state examiner of the state board of accounts relative to the sale of gravel road and other bonds. The state examiner has addressed his communication to "All officials charged with the sale of bonds" in Indiana and demands uniform practice throughout the state in selling bonds. Behind the letter is a story of a situation that has existed in many counties for months.

During the last year a lack of uniformity has been evident with regard to bond sales throughout the state. The letter, sent out by Mr. Hendren, is intended to correct situations which had existed and to point out what the attitude of the state board will be in the matter hereafter.

While Mr. Hendren has given no written opinion relative to certain methods used in bond sales throughout the state during the period mentioned, he has told county treasurers, who have called on him for information, that a system of selling gravel road bonds on a partial payment plan would not be charged up against them by his department. He said the plan, as explained, would leave no way to make charges against the county official.

The method involved, according to attorneys who have studied the question and according to the state board of accounts, Thomas M. Honan, attorney-general, and it is said, Governor Ralston himself, is said to be a technical violation of the bond sale statutes of the state. The method was used in order to allow the county work throughout the state to go forward without interruption, even though the bond market was slow and purchasers for county bonds insisted on buying more cheaply than the law provides.

County treasurers conferred with Mr. Hendren relative to his department's prohibiting them from selling bonds to bond houses and bankers on a basis where the purchaser did not pay the price of the bonds to the county until the work for which the bonds were issued was completed.

The law requiring that a depository of public funds pay the county 2 per cent. interest on such funds was complied with by the purchaser of the bonds paying the county the 2 per cent. depository interest from the date of the sale to the time of final payment on the bonds and their delivery.

The statute provides, however, that the bonds should bear 4 1/2 per cent. interest from the date of sale, according to attorneys and bonding companies, that have investigated the situation. This interest figure applies to gravel road bonds. Other

EXTENSIVE PROBE BY FEDERAL COURT

U. S. Marshals Make Arrests at Terre Haute on Warrants Charging Election Frauds.

APPLICATION OF SECTION 37

This is First Instance Where U. S. District Court Investigates Election Irregularities.

By United Press Indianapolis, Nov. 18.—United States marshals were busy in Terre Haute today making arrests in what promises to be the first extensive probe of the federal government into alleged election frauds since the amendment calling for the direct election of United States senators went into effect.

At noon today six men had been placed under arrest. The specific charge was conspiracy to defraud the United States. The men were arrested on affidavits filed by Miller Davis, of Terre Haute. United States District Attorney Dailey said that this was the first case in which the United States court applied section 37 (which pertains to conspiracy) to election frauds. This is the section under which the celebrated dynamite conspiracy cases were tried.

District Attorney Dailey said there were several other warrants to be served; that the men would be placed in jail here and await arraignment in the federal court the date of which will be fixed later.

REPORT OF DIPHTHERIA AMONG RABBITS IS FALSE

Fred Ehlers, Game Warden, Says Story Was Started by Farmers in Effort to Stop Hunting.

Fred Ehlers, deputy state fish and game warden who works in this vicinity, characterizes as foolish the story sent out from Vevay that thousands of rabbits in Switzerland county are infected with diphtheria.

Ehlers says the story was inspired by farmers who do not want hunters running across their farms. "They are spreading a scare in this way," Ehlers said, "and think they will stop rabbit hunting. They are afraid that if hunters cross their land the hunters may spread the foot and mouth disease."

The deputy game commissioners are keeping a close watch for violations of the game laws but thus far the regulations have been carried out to the letter. The requirement that hunters must have licenses is being given special attention by the wardens.

POINTS OUT GREAT VALUE OF FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Prof. G. I. Christy, of Purdue, Says it Has Important Place in Social Improvement Movement.

"The Farmers' Institute is a recognized institution and has a most important place in the national movement for a better agriculture and country life," said Prof. G. I. Christy, Supt. Agricultural Extension, Purdue University, in his address before the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers and Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations in session at Washington, D. C.

"Farmers' Institutes were inaugurated many years ago and have served as one of the most effective mediums through which agricultural people could be reached. During the last twenty-five years institute work has been developed and extended throughout the United States and Canada until almost every community has felt the presence and influence of the institute lecturer and demonstrator.

"The Farmers' Institute is popular and gains a place with the agricultural people for the reason that it is an organized work conducted in a large measure by the people themselves. State Institute directors and others may present the idea and the objects of institute work, and may assist in perfecting the organization and in furnishing assistance for the meetings, but for the continuance of the work and value of same to the communities rests with the people. This point is important and the value may well be considered by those in charge of the organization and the establishing of other extension projects.

"Since the Farmers' Institute is a recognized agency for extension teaching, why, then should it not serve as one of the strongest branches of organized extension work. The holding of short courses, special meetings and demonstrations should not work for the elimination of Farmers' Institutes. The work of these agencies should result in arousing greater interest in institute meetings. When properly conducted the Farmers' Institute and the other extension agencies will be mutually helpful to each other in promoting a more successful and a better rural life."

U.S. LAUNCH FIRED ON IN SMYRNA GULF

Naval Department Admits Tennessee Cruiser Incident and is Making an Investigation.

COMMANDER UNDER ORDERS

Turkish Embassy Says There May be Misunderstanding Which Can be Quickly Cleared Up.

By United Press. Washington, November 18—Official information that a launch from the armed cruiser Tennessee, flying the stars and stripes, had been fired upon by land batteries while the launch was entering the Gulf of Smyrna, was received by the navy department today from Captain C. C. Decker, of the cruiser. The department has asked for further particulars. In the meanwhile the navy department insists that it sees no cause for alarm at present.

Acting Secretary of State Lansing explained that he has been out of touch with Constantinople for two days. This is due to the interruption of certain direct cable communication and to the fact that messages have to pass through the war territory. So far as direct communication with Smyrna is concerned the secretary said that all word from and to Asia Minor took from two to five days.

The last report from Ambassador Morganthau reached here Monday. It was a routine report that indicated that conditions were in the main tranquil.

Reports that the cruisers Tennessee and North Carolina would be immediately recalled from European waters to avoid another "Maine disaster" were widely circulated after the report of the firing upon the launch was confirmed. Secretary Daniels and other officials of the navy department would not discuss the matter. The secretary declared that he proposed to take one step at a time and that until he had received Captain Decker's official report on the actual circumstances surrounding the incident he would not even consider the status of the cruiser.

"We sent the vessels to Turkey with funds for the relief of Americans who were unable to get money in Turkey after the outbreak of the war," the secretary said. "Since then we have kept them there to afford assistance and relief to Americans in the war zone. Our future action remains to be determined," he said.

bonds have other legal rates of interest. Mr. Hendren explained that his stand on the matter was that the bonds formerly had been disposed of by the contractors putting in a bid of 2 per cent. higher than under the deferred payment plan, the 2 per cent. being paid the bond purchasers as a premium following the sale.

To this argument of Mr. Hendren's the answer is made that the arbitrary 2 per cent., higher bid of the contractor, which he declared was the practice, might have been 1 per cent., 2 per cent., 5 per cent., or even 10 per cent., the contractor being fully at liberty to "get by" with any increased bid that he felt would put him "in the running" on the bids for the county work.

For an instance, it is pointed out, a bond purchaser, under the plan allowed to be put in effect in some counties, would bid on a group of bonds but declare that he could not pay cash for them as the law requires, at the time of sale. He would declare that he would pay for the bonds six months or nine months later, when the work was completed, but would pay the per cent., depository interest from the date of the contract.

Meanwhile, the bonds themselves would be bearing 4½ per cent. interest by law during the interim in which the bond purchaser was paying the county only 2 per cent. interest. The point raised by attorneys and some bond houses was that this phase of the situation made the bonds illegal and that the eventual purchaser of the bonds would have an illegality on his hands. To this contention Mr. Hendren replied, after conference with his legal clerk, George M. Crane, that the time of the contestibility of the bonds having passed, no one was injured, and he asked to whose purpose would it be to contest the bonds.

The law provides that a taxpayer may contest bonds, but Mr. Hendren declared that no taxpayer had been injured by the transaction, therefore no one could go into court and show that he legally had been injured by the program of sale. The bond houses, which have contested the plan of sale, declared that Mr. Hendren's stand on this phase of the situation was erroneous and that taxpayers might have been so injured by the method that they would be able to show their injury to a court.

The entire situation revolved about bonds that had been once advertised for sale in the counties according to law, and for which no bidders appeared. Then some method had to be found to dispose of the bonds, Mr. Hendren explained, and he said he believed the deferred payment plan was much better for the taxpayers than the other, because by the other plan, he argued, the taxpayers of the county lost 2 per cent. of the principal because of the higher bids of the contractors.

Bond houses called the attention to what they termed illegal practices throughout the state and Mr. Hendren replied that the matter had been solved, as it was simply to bridge a financial trouble that threatened throughout the entire country.

Then the bond houses contended that even under the plan adopted by the treasurers and practically ratified by the state board of accounts, a lack of competitive bidding on the sale of the bonds on the deferred payment plan was evident. To this Mr. Hendren replied that the county treasurers merely had conferred with him on the entire proposition and that he did not know in a single instance by what advertising methods the bonds finally were sold on the deferred payment plan. It was charged by a bonding company in Indianapolis that a few other bond houses had been the recipients of all the bonds sold by the counties under the deferred payment plan.

It was declared that no competitive bidding basis had been established—as required by law—following the county treasurers' first failure to dispose of the bonds. The county officers had simply sold the bonds to whom they pleased on the deferred payment plan, it was declared. Mr. Hendren said he did not know anything regarding that phase of the situation.

An instance of this alleged failure to provide competitive bidding conditions is cited in the case in which a new schoolhouse at South Bend was being constructed and it was found impossible to dispose of the bonds in the regular way. The officials went to the state board of accounts with a proposal to sell the bonds to a certain bonding house at a stipulated premium. This was done. Other bonding houses now contend that if the knowledge of the proposed sale under that particular plan had been generally known, they or other bonding houses might have been disposed to take the bonds under other terms.

NEW BANK TO BE OPENED AT ALERT NOVEMBER 19
Articles of Incorporation Showing Capital of $25,000 Filed With Secretary of State.

The Alert State Bank of Alert, Bartholomew county, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The bank is capitalized at $25,000 with John W. Spears, president and Claud F. Tyner as cashier.

The new bank will be opened for business on November 19 and the occasion is to be made an auspicious one. An excellent program has been prepared for the occasion and there will be visiting bankers present from Columbus and other neighboring towns and cities.

The program will begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the address of welcome will be made by Rev. J. C. Nicholson of the Alert Baptist church. The principal address will be made by O. M. Smith, of Indianapolis, secretary of the Indiana Bankers' association.

FIELDS AND WOODLANDS WEST OF SURPRISE SWEEPED BY FIRE

Farmers Organize Brigade and After Hard Work Succeed in Extinguishing the Flames.

Fire which swept the fields and woodlands west of Surprise causing considerable damage has been extinguished. It is not known how the flames originated but they gained rapid headway and it was only by the tireless work of the farmers of that community that they were extinguished before great damage was done. The fire burned for several days.

It is reported that the Beatty, Schneck, Patrick and Carr farms were swept by the flames and that many fences were burned. No houses or sheds were consumed and the damage is confined to the fields and woods. The trees in the knobs caught fire and a large tract of second growth timber was swept. Practically all of the first class timber had been cut and only the smaller trees were left. The fire may have started from a bonfire or from sparks carried by the wind from a burning trash heap. The fields and timber were dry and the fire spread rapidly but the farmers by concerted action were able to successfully cope with the blaze.

LARGER STANDING ARMY IS U. S. NEED

Asserting of General Wetherspoon, Retiring Chief of Staff, in Annual Report.

TO DEFEND THE POSSESSIONS

Declares This Country Could Not Assemble Sufficient Field Force for Defense.

By United Press.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States needs more soldiers. Gen. Wetherspoon, who retired as U. S. army chief of staff this week, made this assertion in positive terms in his annual report made public today.

Not only in the country unprepared to resist invasion by a first class power, he said, but it is likewise in no position to defend the Philippines, the Panama canal, Alaska or Hawaii from hostile attack. Moreover, he continued, the probable value of our coast defenses is questionable.

To relieve these alarming situations, Wetherspoon counseled that the country's standing army be raised from 100,000 men to 205,000 and that in addition there be a mobile army of 500,000 men of the first line and 300,000 of the second line. That the United States would do well to draw from Germany's military training system was his broad hint.

In clear cut language, this recognized military expert declared that this nation with its reserve military strength cannot possible assemble fast enough a sufficient force equipped for field operations, to cope with an enemy debarking on our shores. Distribution of forces on a wide front was advised, because of the wide choice of landing places open to an enemy.

For the first line mobile force of a half million dollars Wetherspoon would have thoroughly trained men, equipped with provisions and supplies for six months. These would be reinforced by a second line of 300,000 drawn from the organized militia and similarly provisioned.

Troops now distributed in foreign possessions or to be distributed under the present organization plans are totally inadequate for the needs of these outlying districts, Wetherspoon held. Effective defense of the Philippines is "manifestly impossible," under present forces, he said.

Likewise the Panama canal cannot be protected against foreign invasion by the present garrison or by proposed additions thereto, unless the army is so equipped that these troops could be rapidly reinforced from the United States.

Of Alaska, he said that the garrison of 500 there "verges on the ridiculous" unless it could be reinforced at the "very earliest stages of an impending conflict by forces from the states. The same criticism, he declared, is applicable to Hawaii.

Germany's system of training soldiers was hinted at as the best means of providing mobile forces that he recommended.

"In any scheme to create such a force of mobile troops as contemplated above," the report said, "we cannot do better than to follow the example of the master minds in military organization for national defense. The policies developed in this direction all include, amongst others, the primary plan of using the standing army as a school for the training of men who, on graduation from that school, pass into the reserve and constitute the real national military strength. Experience has shown that two or three years is the lowest possible limit of time within which the average man can be converted into a disciplined, trained and effective soldier."

BUSINESS EGOTISTS

A business egotist is one who believes his business is so good it is not possible for anything to make it better. Business egotists have no use for advertising—but eventually they keep the sheriff's auctioneer from having a sinecure. There is a vast difference between an egotist and a man with "self confidence." The self confident man believes in his goods and his service. He believes business is just as good as he makes it—and he uses newspaper advertising day in and day out to bring prosperity to his doorstep.

COTTON SUPPLY EXHAUSTED AT THE VIENNA HOSPITALS

Americans Are Asked to Send Packages of Material by Parcel Post to the Red Cross.

By United Press.

Vienna, Nov. 18.—For three weeks the hospitals here have been absolutely without cotton to dress the wounds of dying soldiers. Even the supply of gauze is giving out. Doctors and nurses are forced to use small bags of thread. Every one who can is unravelling small squares of cloth cut from sheets and handkerchiefs. The small pieces of thread are then sewed in bags of gauze. The delicate wounds must be dressed with this harsh material.

Realizing that America is burdened with too much cotton it is suggested here that humane Americans mail by parcel post packages of cotton which can be sent to the following address, "The Red Cross, Vienne." Mark the package "Watte fur die Verwundete" (cotton for the wounded). If addressed in this manner packages of cotton will reach Vienna in three weeks.

MARRIED

BRACKMYRE-BORCHERDING.
Announcements have been received here of the marriage of Miss Mamie Borcharding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Borcharding, and George Brackmyre, of Mott, N. D. The ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents at Moore, Mont. Both the bride and groom are large ranch owners and will make their home near Cavern, Mont. Miss Borcharding is a niece of Mrs. H. R. Kyle, of this city, and has many friends in this community where she formerly lived.

U. S. LAUNCH FIRED ON IN SMYRNA GULF

anxiety at the state department than the plight of the Tennessee, which can take care of itself, was the declaration of Captain Decker that Consul Horton was anxious for the safety of the consulate. This was interpreted to mean that there was much anti-foreign feeling at Smyrna. Secretary Daniels notified President Wilson at 10:28 o'clock this morning that he had at that hour received no confirmation of the report but added that he was trying through every possible source of communication to get in touch with the cruiser and learn of the reported incident directly from the commander. He reported at that hour that the published reports coming from Athens and Venice were false but later learned that the launch had been under fire from the forts.

When the first report of the Tennessee incident was received the naval department was not alarmed but steps were immediately taken to verify the facts reported in the dispatch which came by way of London. At the Turkish embassy it was said that if any difficulty had occurred, as reported, it must have been between the commander of the Tennessee and the port officials at Smyrna and the embassy officials were of the opinion that the misunderstanding could be quickly cleared up.

BELGIUM RELIEF FUND IS GROWING

Residents of Town and Communities Throughout the County are Interested in Movement.

Farmers who have Wheat in Storage May Exchange it for Flour to be Shipped in Car.

Persons who desire to contribute to the Belgian Relief Fund are urged to make their donations not later than the last of next week as arrangements are being made to ship the supplies from this city during the first week of December. It will be necessary to have some idea of the amount of flour and meal that will go from here so that adequate arrangements can be made for shipping facilities. A number of persons have stated that they intend to assist in the movement but have delayed making the contributions as they believed that there was ample time.

It is hoped that at least two carloads of flour and meal can be shipped from Seymour. Towns and communities in all parts of the county are becoming interested in the movement and it is expected that they will make their contributions the first of next week.

A number of inquiries have been made relative to giving flour in exchange for the wheat which has been stored in the local elevators. In answer to the queries the Blish Milling Company has announced that all persons who have wheat in storage at their elevators and desire to give orders for flour against it may do so, provided the additional cost of the sack is paid. The sacks were made especially for the shipment that will be made on the "Northwestern Miller," a ship that has been chartered for the voyage, and cost five cents apiece. The sacks which have been printed to show that the flour and meal come from Seymour, Indiana, will be sold to any one desiring to ship foodstuffs at the cost price.

Many farmers place their wheat in storage so that they can sell it when the market is satisfactory. There are many who will probably give an order for one or more sacks. A party stated today that he had purchased his winter's supply of flour and had bought more than would be used by his family and desired to know if he could give a sack or so of this. There may be others who are situated in like manner and for their benefit it is stated that such donations would be gladly received. It is pointed out that this is not a profit making plan and that any flour or meal that can be donated will be welcomed. The movement is for the benefit of the Belgian sufferers who are in need of food supplies. Farmers who may desire to give a sack of beans or peas may also make such contributions. Vegetables and meats cannot be sent on the ship.

On account of the Recital at the Majestic tonight, the regular meeting of the Choral Society will be held at 7:15 o'clock. All members and any wishing to join are urged to be present at this hour.

We do "Printing that Pleases."

CROTHERSVILLE WILL HELP THE BELGIAN FUND

T. S. Blish Receives Word that Contribution will be Sent from a Neighboring Town.

T. S. Blish, of the Blish Milling Company, has received word from Crothersville that a Sunday School class there has planned to give a sum toward Belgian relief fund and will add it to the amounts already given in Seymour and Jackson county. A few days ago a generous check was received from a citizen of Cortland who expressed the wish that it might be much more.

The untold destitution and suffering which follows in the path of the war and especially in Belgium where the brunt of the war has been borne by a nation not involved directly in the titanic struggle, has appealed to the sympathy of the whole world. The American people are responding generously to the need but reports from the American ambassador indicate that all the help that can be given will be needed.

A carload of flour and meal is being made up in this county. If contributions are sufficient two carloads will be sent. Of this the Blish Milling Company will give at least a half car.

Special prices have been made so that $1.25 will purchase a 49 pound sack of flour and 75 cents will purchase a sack of meal and $2.00 will purchase a sack of both. Tags have been provided by which the name of the donor can be attached to the sack wherever desired. These tags can be secured at the banks, the Blish Milling Company or the Seymour Republican office. All contributions will be reported in this paper as received.

LARGE QUANTITY OF CORN RECEIVED BY LOCAL DEALERS

Yield in Good and Weight and Quality Reported Above the Average —Price Remains 55 Cents.

A large quantity of corn is being received each day by local grain dealers who say that the weight is unusually good and that the quality is above the average. The yield is exceptionally good in most parts of the county and the crop this year is profitable. In a few sections the growing corn was damaged slightly by hail during the summer months and in three or four localities the grain is shrivelled but as a whole the crop in Jackson and Jennings counties is above the average.

A local grain dealer said today that the crop as a whole was the best he had seen for a number of years. He said that the excellent quality was due very largely to the care taken by the farmers in selecting perfect seed for it is impossible to grow the best quality if the seed is inferior. He predicted that the present price, fifty-five cents, would prevail for several weeks and doubted if it would go lower.

The local wheat market remains steady and the price for several days has been $1.08.

YEGGMEN MAKE BIG HAUL FROM CHAMBERS STATE BANK

Safe Torn to Fragments by Terrible Explosion and Robbers Obtain About $4,000.

By United Press.

Lafayette, Ind., November 18.—Yeggmen early today blew the safe of the state bank at Chambers and obtained between $3,500 and $4,000 cash. The explosion tore the safe to fragments. William Vaughn, living above the bank, heard the explosion and ran to the street. A robber knocked him down and they carried him unconscious to his door where they told Mrs. Vaughn to care for him. The robbers escaped.

Mrs. Joe Nikirk, who underwent an operation at the Schneck hospital, is doing nicely.

EASTERN CAMPAIGN FURIOUS

Germans Facing a Desperate Foe.

RUSSIANS PUSHING ON

In Poland the Fighting Is Becoming a Great Battle.

REPORTS FROM PETROGRAD

Continue to Indicate Progress of Czar's Forces.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—The general staff announces that important operations have occurred on the western front and that in the east the situation is favorable.

Petrograd, Nov. 18.—A special envoy from Serbia has arrived here to urge Russia to assist his country, whose army has been reduced from 100,000 to 30,000. Serbia is said to be in fear of conquest by Austria and Russia will take active steps to win

Petrograd, Nov. 18.—The Russians continue to inflict heavy losses on the Germans. Between Plotzk and the Warthe they have broken their communications and the water difficulties compel the fighting columns constantly to change ground, but always the Russian cavalry maintains its ascendancy.

The Germans in this vicinity number probably about 250,000. They have on their left flank the Russian army, which has been thrown on Kalisz, and on their right a Russian army which is fighting toward the north toward Soltau.

The Germans are unquestionably suffering more disaster in this prairie region than if they had remained in their own permanent positions across near Thorn, but sacrifices had to be made as the only means of learning whether the chief strength of Russia was to be thrown into East Prussia toward the northwest. Russian leaders still keep the enemy in the dark respecting their main strategic plan. The Germans are fighting desperately among the Mazurian lakes. The Russians are constantly using their bayonets. They find piles of dead on each line of resistance.

Fighting Was Desperate.

The fighting was especially furious when the Russians took Goldap and pierced the front of the main German column. Here the Russians turned beyond the north end of the retreating army, which at the end of the day's fighting found itself attacked on three sides. It suffered so terribly that General Francois, commanding the German westward retreat across East Prussia, had to detach another army corps to screen the rear of his transports.

From his headquarters at Thorn General von Hindenburg is intensifying his desperate effort to arrest the development of a winter campaign in Germany. His forces are fighting vehemently in a large triangular battle area in northwest Poland. The Germans are spread along a base from the Vistula to the Warthe. The Russians form two sides of the triangle and are pressing them backward on the frontier.

Cavalry Suffering Terribly.

This struggle has grown in violence in three days and has now assumed the dimensions of a great battle. It is General von Hindenburg's last remedy against finding his position at Thorn passed by the great Russian armies, one moving westward and the other northward. The Russians are displaying their shock tactics, which, during the onslaughts against the Germans when the latter were driven from the vicinity of Warsaw, wrought tremendous losses. The German cavalry is now exhausted and is suffering terribly.

Meanwhile the Russian southern army has vigorously begun the investment of Cracow by moving armies from the northeast along the Radom road, and is marching westward across Galicia. General Dankl, who is directing the defense of Cracow, has moved his foremost works six miles beyond the permanent outer section of the fortress. His position now is in the firing zone of the Russian advance.

Killed in Motorcycle Wreck.

Sheridan, Ind., Nov. 18.—William Eholty, a lineman, is dead at his home here of injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding struck a bridge a half mile northeast of this place. His skull was fractured by the force of the impact.

Mrs. Lloyd C. Griscom, whose husband was formerly the American ambassador at Rome, is dead at New York. She was the daughter of Mrs. Adrian M. Iselin.

ALLIES CONDUCTING WINNING OFFENSIVE

Operations in Flanders Reported "Satisfactory."

Paris, Nov. 18.—The impression gained here by the latest official report is, as the statement itself says, "satisfactory." The announcement that the allies have made progress at every important point where the fighting has been important during the past two days, since the loss of Dixmude, indicates that the German advance has been definitely checked and that the plan of General Joffre to push his lines ahead, no matter how slowly, is one that takes fully into account temporary checks and incidental reverses.

The report is especially cheerful because of the fact that the Germans have again begun their forcing tactics in the region of Ypres, which has all along been the center of the most severe actions and that the allies have held their ground and even made more or less marked progress. The report detailed attempts of the Germans to advance at a number of points and recorded the complete success of the allies in repulsing these efforts, notably on the canal to the south of Dixmude, to the south of Ypres, on the Aisne in the neighborhood of Vailly, and to the south of Bixchoote.

Announcement also was made in positive terms that the allies have been conducting an extremely successful offensive, particularly against the point of the German wedge. Here for the first time an attack from the west by the French troops resulted in a German repulse. The report showed that the allies now have a foothold in the village of Chauvencourt, about a mile and a quarter west of St. Mihiel, the sole remaining point of support left to the enemy on the left bank of the Meuse in this locality. Violent cannonading has been resumed in the Rhelms region and several shells have again fallen in the city.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The Prince of Wales has been appointed an aide to General Sir John French, commander of the British forces in France.

The Southern Pacific elevator at Galveston, containing more than 800,000 bushels of wheat, was burned at a loss estimated at $1,000,000.

The British government has decided to declare the whole of the North sea within the military area because of mine laying and the presence of submarines.

The twentieth annual meeting of the National Municipal League and the twenty-second National Conference for Good City Government is in session at Baltimore.

Miss Anna A. Gordon of Evanston, Ill., was elected president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at its general convention, succeeding the late Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens.

Manton M. Wyvell of New York, secretary to Secretary of State Bryan, has been appointed consul to the international (Canada-United States) joint commission at a salary of $5,000.

The first list of Victoria cross winners announced gives the names of five officers and four non-commissioned men. Two of the non-commissioned men have received commissions since winning the cross.

Three men in a wagon dumped a barrel into the gutter at Long Island City and drove on. The barrel later was found to contain the still warm body of an unidentified man who had been shot through the heart.

TURKS FIRED ON AMERICAN CREW

Forced Launch Out of the Harbor at Smyrna.

CAPTAIN ISSUES CHALLENGE

When a Crew of a Launch Sent From the Cruiser Tennessee to Make Inquiry From Turkish Port Authorities Was Compelled to Turn Back, Commander of Warship Sent Word That He Would Enter the Harbor.

Constantinople, Nov. 18.—The war office announces that British troops have been badly defeated near Fao on the Persian gulf and that a thousand British were killed.

Athens, Nov. 18.—A dispatch received here says the American armored cruiser Tennessee anchored at Vuria in Asia Minor and sent a party in a launch to confer with the authorities of Smyrna with a view to obtaining an authorization for the cruiser to enter the harbor.

The forts fired on the launch, which was obliged to return to the Tennessee. The commander of the American warship then notified the governor of the port that he had received orders from the American government to enter the harbor and he was determined to comply with his instructions.

Navy Department Skeptical.

Washington, Nov. 18.—According to the latest reports of the navy department from the Tennessee she is at Mitylene. No order has been sent her to leave there, but she is at liberty to go elsewhere if the commanding officer thinks it necessary. Navy officers do not believe she has left, however, nor do they believe she has gone to Smyrna because weeks ago the United States was notified of the mining of Smyrna harbor. Secretary Daniels expressed doubt that the Tennessee was at Smyrna, as reported.

PRESIDENT IS ENCOURAGED

Issues Prosperity Note Based on Federal Reserve System.

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Wilson sounded an optimistic note on business in a letter addressed to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. Taking as the occasion for a prosperity keynote, the opening of the federal reserve system, the president in acknowledging a brief letter from Mr. McAdoo announcing the successful opening of the reserve system, declared that the country is in a fair way to prosperous conditions. The president disclaims personal credit for the financial legislation and graciously acknowledges the efforts of others, who with "labor and knowledge and forethought and practical experience cooperated with unusual wisdom and admirable public spirits" to bring it about.

Incidentally the president recognizes the efforts of the banks and the railroads to meet the situation and suggests that the railroad problem will have to be dealt with at an early day in a spirit of "candor."

The letter of Secretary McAdoo to the president, which called out the letter, informed the president that the twelve federal reserve banks authorized by the federal reserve act were formally opened for business, congratulating him upon the actual establishment of these banks, and adding: "They are the result of the great piece of financial legislation with which your name is imperishably associated and which promises in my judgment immeasurable benefits to the people."

AN INFLUENCE FOR GOOD

Financiers Take Hopeful View of Completion of Cotton Fund.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The Wadsworth cotton fund of $100,000,000 has been completed. This fund, which is to be administered under direction of the federal reserve board through a bankers' committee already appointed, will soon become available for loans on cotton at 6 cents a pound.

It is the belief of the administration officials that the assembling of the cotton fund will have a salutary effect on business generally and that it will have an influence for good on the international commercial situation.

Charity Worker Ends Life.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18.—Herbert W. Lewis, head of the Children's Home Aid Society of California, committed suicide by taking poison. Lewis was arrested on a San Francisco warrant, the complainant being a fifteen-year-old girl in his charge. He was fifty-five years old, a man of family and more than state-wide prominence in the work of rescuing waifs and reclaiming wayward girls. He had protested his innocence of the offense charged against him.

Child Probably Fatally Burned.

MUST NOW AWAIT A FOREIGN SUGGESTION

Uncle Sam Can Go No Further As Peace Maker.

London, Nov. 18.—The agitation in the newspapers of Holland for joint intervention by the queen of the Netherlands and the president of the United States is increasing, but it has not as yet evoked any comment here.

Washington, Nov. 18.—There is no indication of a movement for intervention in the European war by the Washington government or another tender of its good offices as peacemaker. Both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have said to callers that until there was an intimation from one of the belligerents that the good offices of the United States as peacemaker was desired no further move looking to peace would be made by the president.

The president said there could be no further step in the way of offering mediation without the risk of incurring the displeasure of certain of the powers and crippling the efforts of this country to achieve peace when the time comes to act. The president will wait for a suggestion from one or more of the belligerents that mediation is desired. The United States, through the president in a formal as well as in an informal way, has made the tender of its good offices for mediation. The offer stands and is well understood by the belligerents.

HAS NOTHING TO GIVE OUT

State Department Considers Latin American Incident Closed.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Though he has not received any replies from the American diplomatic representatives in Ecuador and Colombia whom he instructed to "investigate" charges that the neutrality of those countries was not being preserved with sufficient strictness, Secretary Bryan has announced that the incident might be considered closed.

Mr. Bryan said there had been so much misrepresentation about the state department's action in the matter that he would discuss the subject no further. Results of the department's inquiries will not be made public through him.

Wants a Change of Venue.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 18.—Loring W. Mellett, an attorney of Indianapolis, formerly of Elwood, has asked for a change of venue in a case in which he is accused of embezzlement. Mellett's trial was to have been called in the circuit court here. He is under a bond of $2,500.

Russians are reported to be disappointed because the allies have not driven the Germans out of France and Belgium and because England and France have not put larger armies in the field.

IT HINGES UPON GENERAL VILLA

Question of Peace Or War In Mexico.

GARRANZA'S LATEST TERMS

Deposed Chief Now Makes His Proposed Retirement and Exile Conditional Upon the Same Action on Villa's Part and Proposes, as a Guaranty, That the Latter Shall Meet Him in Havana Not Later Than Nov. 25.

El Paso, Nov. 18.—General Villa is willing to leave Mexico in accordance with the agreement between the Aguas Calientes convention and General Carranza, who also is to leave the republic, but Villa is anxious first to see the provisional president, Gutierrez, safely established in Mexico City. This is the purport of messages which have reached border agents of the convention.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Upon General Villa, hinges the question whether there is to be revolution or peace in Mexico for the immediate future, according to dispatches received at the state department.

It has developed that the willingness of Carranza to retire unconditionally, as announced, is really dependent upon his previous announcement, namely, that Villa not only retire from his military command, but that he leave the country. Carranza also makes the new condition that Villa must meet him in Havana Nov. 25, is due to a desire to have before his own eyes satisfactory and conclusive evidence that Villa is not really in Mexico leading an army.

This information was received at the state department from Consul Silliman in Mexico City. Mr. Silliman also reported that the papers were publishing the text of an alleged telegram from General Gutierrez, the provisional president chosen by the convention to succeed Carranza, announcing that he was willing to accept the conditions of Carranza's retirement.

On the other hand not a word has been received here officially indicating that General Gutierrez, Villa or the convention have done anything toward accepting Carranza's latest offer to resign conditionally. It is known officially, however, that General Gutierrez is disposed to go very far toward making Carranza's retirement from office easy for the first chief. There has not, however, come any word that Villa has retired voluntarily from his military command nor that General Gutierrez has relieved him of his command.

Advices came to the Constitutional headquarters in Washington that Villa's troops under command of General Angeles engaged in battle yesterday with troops of General Carranza at Leon in the state of Guanajuato, and were defeated. The headquarters also have advices that Arrieta brothers, leading the Carranza troops, are moving against Torreón.

KILLING THE FILIBUSTERS

Villa Announces War to Extermination Against Armed Bands.

Juarez, Nov. 18.—A war of extermination is being waged on filibusters around Juarez by Villa's troops. Following a battle at Guadalupe, in which five filibusters were killed, seven of the band who had surrendered to the Villa troops were executed in Juarez. The execution was in the old barracks in which more than 100 have been shot to death during the four years of revolution, and was witnessed by a crowd of people, among the number being several Americans. The order had been issued by Villa that all men found in northern Mexico bearing arms who are not allied with his forces are to be put to death when found. The seven filibusters who had surrendered expected amnesty, but were executed within an hour after they were brought into Juarez. They had raided the T. O. ranch, owned by Morris & Co., and had been driven back by American cowboys when troops from the Juarez garrison overtook and attacked them.

BURGLARS START A BLAZE

An Elkhart Factory Suffers a Double Loss.

Elkhart, Ind., Nov. 18.—The plant of the Ideal Spring Wheel company, makers of automobile wheels, was partly destroyed by fire. The office safe was found blown open and the contents scattered. Fire Chief Denson is not certain whether the fire originated from the explosion, but the police are investigating on the theory that a burglary was committed. The loss is $25,000.

Run Away From School to Marry.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 18.—When a truant officer made an investigation to ascertain why Merle Fogel, fifteen, had not been attending school, he discovered that the girl and Ernest Elliott had eloped to Kentucky and been married.

CHURCH AND STATE MAY BE RECONCILED

Conclusion Based Upon Pope's First Encyclical.

Rome, Nov. 18.—A consideration of the first encyclical of Pope Benedict leads to the conclusion that the pontiff's sentiments toward Italy are of the most friendly character and that a reconciliation with the kingdom is not an impossibility.

The conclusion of the document, which covers a full page in the Osservatore Romano, is the most important part in that it implies a virtual renunciation of the pope's claims for temporal sovereignty. The pontiff does renew the protest against the loss of such power, but expresses his opinion in the mildest of terms. He does not use the words "temporal power," but merely says that he lacks the power to accomplish his duties owing to the abnormal condition in which the holy see is placed.

THREATEN LABOR TROUBLE

Unions May Tie Up Work on New York Subways.

New York, Nov. 18.—Stoppage of work on the entire dual rapid transit system, throwing out of employment 18,000 men who are drawing $2,000,000 a week, tying up the city's great investment and delaying the subways until court contests can be decided, is threatened by the action of labor unions, revealed to the public service commission.

To each contractor building the dual system the bricklayers' union, in concert with all the other unions affected by subway and elevated work, has sent a letter saying that "any contractor who continues to violate the labor law will be prosecuted."

Lad Attempted Suicide.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 18.—Kenneth Wise, aged fourteen, an employee of a drug store here, attempted to commit suicide when he fired two shots from a revolver into his head at the base of his brain. He refused to give any reason for the act. His condition is serious.

To date the federal and state governments have spent approximately $750,000 in the campaign against the live stock foot and mouth disease epidemic.

CHAPTER VI.

The Game Begins.

The room in the turret was now swimming in smoke and lime dust; I could scarcely see the gray figure of the Countess through the powder-mist which drifted in through shutters and loop-hole, dimming the fading daylight.

And now wagon-loads of French wounded began to pass jolting over crushed helmets, rifles, cuirasses, and the carcasses of dead horses.

A Horrible Butchery of Men and Horses Began.

A covey of Uhlans entered the shambles, picking their way across the wreckage of the battle, a slim, wiry, fastidious company, dainty as spurred gamecocks, with their helmet-cords swinging like wattles and their schapskaps tilted rakishly.

Then the sad cortege of prisoners formed in the smoke, the wounded leaning on their silent comrades, bandaged heads hanging, the others erect, defiant, supporting the crippled or standing with arms folded and helmeted heads held high.

And at last they started, between two files of mounted Uhlans—Turcos, line infantrymen, gendarmes, lancers, and, towering head and shoulders above the others, the superb cuirassiers.

Under the window soldiers began shooting the crippled horses; the heavy flash and bang of rifles set the countess trembling again.

Until the firing ceased she stood as though stupefied, scarcely breathing, her splendid hair glistening like molten copper in the red torches' glare.

Soldiers began to come and go in the room; some carried off chairs for officers below, some took the pillows from the bed, one bore away a desk on his broad shoulders.

The Countess never moved or spoke. The evening had grown chilly; I was cold to my knees.

A soldier offered to build me a fire in the great stone fireplace behind me, and when I assented he calmly smashed a chair to kindling-wood, wrenched off the heavy posts of the bed, and started a fire which lit up the wrecked room with its crimson glare.

The Countess rose and looked around. The soldier pushed my long chair to the blaze, tore down the canopy over the bed and flung it over me, stolidly ignoring my protests. Then he clumped out with his muddy boots and shut the door behind him.

For a long while I lay there, full in the heat of the fire, half-dozing, then sleeping, then suddenly alert, only to look about me to see the Countess with eyes closed, motionless in her arm-chair, only to hear the muffled thunder of the guns in the dark.

A few moments later a clock in the hallway struck nine times. At the same instant a deadened cannon-shot echoed the clamor of the clock. It was the last shot of the battle. And when the dull reverberations had died away Alsace was a lost province, MacMahon's army was in full retreat, leaving on the three battle-fields of Worth, Reichshoffen, and Froeschweiler sixteen thousand dead, wounded, and missing soldiers of France.

About seven o'clock that morning a gaunt, leather-faced Prussian officer, immaculate in his somber uniform, entered the room without knocking.

"Monsieur, I have the honor to hand you a copy of regulations. I am the provost marshal; all complaints should be brought to me. A list of the inhabitants of Morsbronn will be made today. You will have the goodness to declare yourself—and you also, madame. There being other buildings better fitted, no soldiers will be quartered in this house."

The officer evidently mistook me for the owner of the house and not a prisoner. A blanket hid my hussar trousers and boots; he could only see my ragged shirt.

"And now, madame," he continued, "as monsieur appears to be the services of a physician, I shall send him a French doctor, brought in this morning from the Chateau of la Trappe."

He turned his grim, inflexible face to the Countess and bowed, then he bowed to me, swung squarely on his heel, and walked to the door.

"Admit the French doctor," he said to the soldier on guard, and marched out, his curved saber banging behind his spurred heels.

"It must be, Dr. Delmont!" I said, looking at the Countess as there came a low knock at the door.

She rose unsteadily from her chair; somebody entered the room behind me and I turned, calling out, "Welcome, doctor!"

"Thank you," replied the calm voice of John Buckhurst at my elbow.

The Countess shrank aside as Buckhurst coolly passed before her, turned his slim back to the embers of the fire, and fixed his eyes on me—those pale, slow eyes, passionless as death.

"My friend," he observed in English, "do you think you will know me again when you have finished your scrutiny?"

The Countess, face averted, passed behind my chair.

"Wait," said Buckhurst; and turning directly to me, he added: "You were mistaken for a hussar at La Trappe; you were mistaken here for a hussar as long as the squad holding this house remained in Morsbronn. A few moments ago the provost mistook you for a civilian." He looked across at the Countess, who already stood with her hand on the door-knob.

"If you disturb me," he said, "I have only to tell the provost the truth. Members of Imperial Police caught without proper uniform inside German lines are shot, seance tenante."

The Countess stood perfectly still a moment, then came straight to me.

"Madame," said Buckhurst, in his peculiarly soft and persuasive voice, "I am not here to betray this gentleman; I am not here even to justify myself. I came here to make reparation, to ask your forgiveness, madame, for the wrong I have done you, and to deliver myself, if necessary, into the hands of the proper French authorities in expiation of my misguided zeal."

"I do not exactly understand," said I, "how you can expiate a crime here."

"I can at least make retribution," he said, turning the paper box over and over between his flat fingers.

"Have you brought me the diamonds which belong to the state?" I inquired, amused.

"Yes," he said, and to my astonishment he drew a small leather pouch from his pocket and laid it on my blanket-covered knees. "How many diamonds were there?" he asked.

"One hundred and three," I replied, incredulously, and opened the leather pouch. Inside was a bag of chamois-skin. This I stretched wide and emptied.

Scores of little balls of tissue-paper rolled out on the blanket over my knees; I opened one; it contained a diamond; I opened another, another, and another; diamonds lay blazing on my blanket, a whole handful, glittering in undimmed splendor.

"Count them," murmured Buckhurst, fashioning the paper box into a fly-trap with a lid.

With a quick movement I swept them into my hands, then one by one dropped the stones while I counted aloud one hundred and two diamonds. The one hundred and third jewel was, of course, safely in Paris.

When I had a second time flinched the enumeration I leaned back in my chair, utterly at a loss to account for this man or for what he had done. As far as I could see there was no logic in it, nothing demonstrated, nothing proven. To me—and I am not either suspicious or obstinate by nature—Buckhurst was still an unrepentant thief and a dangerous one.

"Mr. Buckhurst," I said, pompously, "in bringing these diamonds to me you have certainly done all in your power to repair an injury which concerned all France."

"As I am situated, of course I cannot now ask you to accompany me to Paris, where doubtless the proper authorities would gladly admit extenuating circumstances, and credit you with a sincere repentance. But I put you on your honor to surrender at the first opportunity."

It was as stupidly trite a speech as I could think of.

Buckhurst glanced up at me. Was he taking my measure anew, judging me from my bray?

"I could easily aid you to leave Morsbronn," he said, stolidly.

"Oh," thought I, "so you're a German agent, too, as I suspected." But I said aloud, simulating astonishment: "Do you mean to say, Mr. Buckhurst, that you would deliberately risk death to aid a police officer to bring you before a military tribunal in Paris?"

"I do not desire to pose as a hero or a martyr," he said, quietly, "but I regret what I have done, and I will do what an honest man can do to make the fullest reparation—even if it means my death."

The unhappy Countess looked at me. It goes hard with a woman when her guide and mentor falls.

"If you return to Paradise, in Morsbronn," as we had planned, may I go," he asked, humbly, "only as an obscure worker in the cause? I beg, madame, that you will not cast me off."

So he wanted to go to Morsbronn—to the village of Paradise? Why?

The Countess said: "I welcome all who care for the cause. You will never hear an unkind word from me if you desire to resume the work in Paradise. Dr. Delmont will be there; Monsieur Tavernier also, I hope; and they are older and wiser than I, and they have reached that lofty serenity which is far above my troubled mind. Ask them what you have asked of me; they are equipped to answer you."

It was time for another discord from me, so I said: "Madame, you have seen a thousand men lay down their lives for France. Has it not shaken your allegiance to that ghost of patriotism which you call the 'Internationale'?"

The Countess turned her troubled eyes to me.

"What I have seen, what I have thought since yesterday has distressed me dreadfully," she said. "I have tried to include all the world in a broader pity, a broader, higher, and less selfish love than the jealous, single-minded love for one country."

"You saw the cuirassiers die in the street below," I repeated, with the obstinacy of a limited intellect.

"Yes—and my heart went out to them," she replied, with an emphasis that pleased me and startled Buckhurst.

Buckhurst began to speak, but I cut him short.

"Then, madame, if your heart went out to the soldiers of France, it went out to France, too!"

"Yes—to France," she repeated, and I saw her lip begin to quiver.

"Wherein does love for France conflict with our creed, madame?" asked Buckhurst, gently. "It is only hate that we abjure."

She turned her gray eyes on him. "I will tell you: in that dreadful moment when the cavalry of France cheered Death in his own awful presence, I loved them and their country—my country!—as I had never loved in all my life. . . . And I hated, too! I hated the men who butchered them—more—I hated the country where the men came from; I hated race and country and the blows they dealt, and the evil they wrought on France—my France! That is the truth; and I realize it!"

After a silence Buckhurst said: "All that may be, madame, yet not impair your creed."

"What!" she said, "does not hatred of the stranger impair my creed?"

"It will die out and give place to reason."

"When? When I attain the lofty, dispassionate level I have never attained. That will not be while this war endures."

"Who knows?" said Buckhurst, gently.

I said, abruptly: "So you are not going to denounce me to the Prussian provost?"

He lifted his well-shaped head and gazed at the Countess with an admirable pathos which seemed a mute appeal for protection from brutality.

"That question is a needless one," said the Countess, quietly. "It was a cruel one, also, Monsieur Scarlett."

"I did not mean it as an offensive question," said I. "I was merely reciting a fact, most creditable to Mr. Buckhurst. And if it be true that Monsieur Buckhurst desires to atone for what has happened, then it is perfectly proper for me, even as a prisoner myself, to speak plainly. Is it not my duty, as a guardian of national interests, to point out to Mr. Buckhurst his honest errors? Certainly it is, madame, and this is the proper time."

Turning pompously to Buckhurst, I fancied I could almost detect a sneer on that inexpressive mask he wore—at least I hoped I could, and I said, heavily:

"Monsieur, for a number of years there has passed under our eyes here in France certain strange phenomena. Thousands of Frenchmen have, so to speak, separated themselves from the rest of the nation."

"France is only a name to them; they were born there, they live there, they derive their nourishment from her without gratitude. But France is nothing to them; their mother-land is the Internationale!"

I was certain now that the shadow of a sneer had settled in the corners of Buckhurst's thin lips.

"Believe me, madame, the time is coming when the whole world will rise to combat this Internationale; and when the mask is dragged from its benignant visage, there, grinning behind, will appear the same old 'Specter Rouge,' torch in one hand, gun in the other, squatting behind a barricade of paving-blocks."

I wagged my head dolefully.

"I could not have rested had I not warned Mr. Buckhurst of this," I said, sentimentally.

Which was fairly well done, considering that I was figuratively lamenting over the innocence of the most accomplished scoundrel that ever sat in the supreme council of the Internationale.

Buckhurst looked thoughtfully at the floor.

"Your earnestness almost converted me," he said, lifting his stealthy eyes. The Countess appeared weary and perplexed.

"At all events," she said, "we must do nothing to embarrass France now; we must do nothing until this frightful war is ended."

After a silence Buckhurst said, "But you will go to Paradise, madame?"

"Yes," replied the Countess, listlessly.

Now, what in Heaven's name attracted that rogue to Paradise?

Corrected Her.

The American tourist was taking the rest cure for a day in a London boarding house.

"I shall want no more meals," she said when the maid brought up tea. "I shall be up for dinner. There's nothing more I want."

Then in the next breath she added: "Oh, yes, there is! I want that hot water bottle. But that's not to eat."

The cockney maid stood silent for a moment, then said cheerfully: "Oh, yes, it is to eat! You want me to eat it for you."

A Test of Nerve.

To crouch in a trench or covered bombproof from dawn until dusk, to hear the incessant whistle of thousands of projectiles, to mark the little clouds of dust kicked up by bullets as they strike the ground near a trench or shelter, to start at the bursting of shrapnell shells, each containing 200 or 300 bullets which are scattered over many yards, is a test of human nerve which Napoleon's Old Guard was never called upon to withstand.—Waldeemar Kaempfert in American Review of Reviews.

A MOTHER'S GRATITUDE.

Many a Mother in Seymour Will Appreciate the Following.

Many a strong man and many a healthy woman has much for which to thank mother. The care taken during their childhood brought them past the danger point and made them healthy men and women. Thousands of children are bothered with incontinence of urine, and inability to retain it is oftentimes called a habit. It is not always the children's fault—in many cases the difficulty lies with the kidneys, and can be readily righted. A Seymour mother tells how she went about it.

Mrs. Breeden, 213 East St., Seymour, says: "Our boy was delicate and his inability to control the kidney secretions gave us a great deal of trouble. Nothing brought him relief until I began giving him Doan's Kidney Pills. They toned up his system and he is not bothered by his kidneys now."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Breeden recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

It Really Does Relieve Rheumatism.

Everybody who is afflicted with Rheumatism in any form should by all means keep a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on hand. The minute you feel pain or soreness in a joint or muscle, bathe it with Sloan's Liniment. Do not rub it. Sloan's penetrates almost immediately right to the seat of pain, relieving the hot, tender, swollen feeling and making the part easy and comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds, sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.

Lunar Rainbows.

Lunar rainbows are seldom observed in the temperate zone. Very likely the physical phenomenon occurs frequently, but is invisible because of the faintness of the moon's light. In the tropics, where moonlight is more intense, says the Scientific American, lunar rainbows are more frequently observed. They are by no means rare at Reunion island. At all places the phenomenon is most frequently seen at full moon when the moon's light is highest, but it has been seen in various phases of the moon. It was first observed by Aristotle. A lunar rainbow is produced at full moon by the spray of the great Victoria falls of the Yguassu, in Brazil.

Blood Sun.

Want to Know

The Light is Turned on to a Subject of Darkness.

The mere fact that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, drives out disease is a world's story, a topic of conversation wherever men get together.

They wonder why, simply because most remedies are mystified and put before them as "discoveries." The facts are that we pay too much attention to possibilities and not enough to real, homespun accomplishment. S. S. S. is a remedy of our fathers. It has a history that is written deeply in men's minds because it has done the work, driven out deep seated disease, revived hope, put the O. K. on appearance and clamped down tight any effort of germs to get the upper hand. Any sore spot on the skin is an immediate demand for S. S. S. since the first principle of this famous remedy is to strike out for places of trouble. This is a physiological fact and S. S. S. is true to the workings of our body.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today at any druggist and begin blood health. It will master any blood disease and do it in way to emphasize its influence. And I you would like definite advice write The Swift Specific Co., 56 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Their medical department is where most people first seek advice that puts them on the straight road.

Not So Short.

He was supposed to be a poor but otherwise honest young man, while she was admittedly a thing of beauty.

"Will you marry me?" he asked.

"No," she answered.

"You are very short," he muttered.

"Ditto," she replied. "That's why there is nothing doing in the matrimonial line."

"Oh, I don't know!" he sneered as he extracted an obese billbook from an inside pocket and displayed a number of $1,000 bills. "I'm not so short."

Whereupon the unwary maid tried to fall upon his neck, but he gracefully sidestepped, and she fell to the floor in a faint.—Chicago News.

The Kat Plant.

In parts of Abyssinia and Yemen the natives use a plant called kat (Catha edulis), the effects of which are similar to those of the Peruvian coca. The freshly cut leaves have a rather pleasant taste and produce a kind of intoxication of long duration, with none of the disagreeable features of ordinary inebriety. Messengers and soldiers are enabled by chewing the leaves to go without food for a number of days. Among those who abuse the habit the body tends to dry, the visage becomes emaciated, and nervous trouble follows, the most usual being a trembling of the limbs, but these cases are rare.

Don't Delay Treating Your Cough.

A slight cough often becomes serious, Lungs get congested, Bronchial Tubes fill with mucus. Your vitality is reduced. You need Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It soothes your irritated air passages, loosens mucus and makes your system resist Colds. Give the Baby and Children Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It's guaranteed to help them. The American Quartet

With Clayton Conrad

The program of the American Quartet and Clayton Conrad will consist of both vocal and instrumental music, interspersed with cartoons—just such a program as Lyceum audiences delight in.

The instrumental music will be presented by three members of the quartet on the violin, cello and piano.

The length of the program will be about one hour and forty minutes, one half hour being devoted to the work of Mr. Conrad—the cartoonist.

Mr. Clayton Conrad features speech in drawing his pictures. His experience in newspaper cartoon and commercial art work, combined with fine ideas of color, fit him well for the position he holds with this company.

The pictures he draws in color are original and are new ideas presented in a novel way. He uses two easels. Mr. Conrad has made a special study of coloring and the results he obtains in a few moments with crayons are truly wonderful.

The American Quartet will appear at the Majestic Theatre,

TUESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 24th

8:15 O'CLOCK

As the first number of this season's Lyceum Course. A good, lively, varied program, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections, readings, whistling solos, etc.

Admission 25 and 35 Cents

Reserved seats 10c extra, on sale Saturday at Carters' Drug Store. Season tickets, good for entire course of five numbers, may be had for $1.00. Children's season tickets 75 cents.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A farewell party complimentary to Miss Emma Nuss, who will leave Thursday evening for Birmingham, Ala., was given Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Kasting, on Oak street. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Kasting and quite a number of the friends of the honor guest were present. Miss Nuss will make her home with Will Nuss in the south. A two-course luncheon was served.

Those present were: Harry Kasting, Arthur Kasting, Will Osterman, Jack Stewart, Carlos Brown, Clarence Brown, Ed Jobsvoigt, John Rodert, Ed Hoferkamp, Will Kennedy, Misses Julia Waskom, Edna Helmbrecht, Elizabeth Doane, Emma Shrier, Eleanor Toppie, Lillian Kasting, Edna Vonstroh, Emma Nuss and Bessie Kasting.

CAMPBELL-ROBINSON.

Clarence Campbell, of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Emma Robinson were married this afternoon at the home of the bride in Morman, Ky. Mrs. Campbell has been bookkeeper at the Mutual Telephone Exchange for the past year. They will reside in Detroit, where the groom owns a drug store.

Her Weight of Sin.

"Mother, I've a dreadful thing to confess to you. Last night when you told me to lie down in bed I lied down, but after you turned out the gas I ground my teeth at you in the dark!"—London Punch.

On the Defensive.

"Why," asked the simple stranger, "are people engaged in conducting a hotel so frequently distant or overbearing of manner?"

"Well," replied the clerk confidentially, "we're forced into a defensive attitude. There isn't a guest who doesn't honestly think he could improve on the way any hotel he stays at could be run."—Washington Star.

Artificial Butter.

Margarine, the first artificial butter, was made at Poissy, in France, in 1889, for the first time. It was made from the fat of the kidneys and loins of cattle. Tallow, lard and olive and cottonseed oil are also used in the manufacture of various butterines. Coconut butter is largely used in northern Europe.
